

ABSTRACT

A method and apparatus of training a neural network. The method and apparatus include creating a model for a desired function as a multi-dimensional function, determining if the created model fits a simple finite geometry model, and generating a
5 Radon transform to fit the simple finite geometry model. The desired function is fed through the Radon transform to generate weights. A multilayer perceptron of the neural network is trained using the weights.

102210" 6229250